CUSTOM SECURITY

New monitoring and reporting tools from Sentry help libraries operate more efficiently

GateKeeper™ is an integral part of Sentry, Insight™ RFID Theft Detection Systems.

Library staff gain real-time access to statistics and customized reports on event data.

Ability to identify items not properly checked-out and alarm counting help optimize the use of staff time.

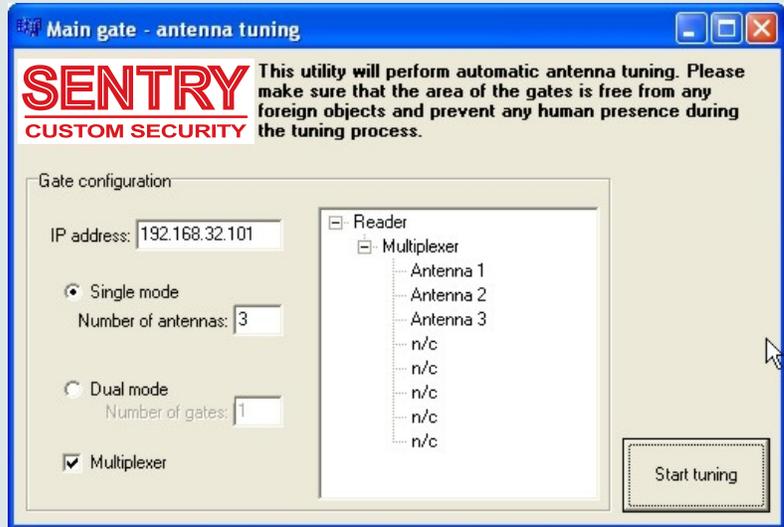

GateKeeper™ also initiates the systems self-tuning feature. The automated tuning feature supports single and multiple aisle gate configurations.

Insight™ RFID Systems

Available in Single, Dual and Multiple Aisle Configurations

GateKeeper™ Admin and Event Software for Insight™ RFID Systems

GateKeeper™ is a software program used for tuning RFID antennas, monitoring alarm events and reporting on event data. GateKeeper™ instantly lets library personnel identify any item not properly checked out, so the situation can be investigated in the least intrusive way to the patron.

As soon as the Insight™ RFID Detection System senses the alarm through the presence of a tag set to an alarm value, it reads the content of the tag header. The tag header contains information such as media type, item barcode, library identifier, location code, etc. This information is immediately available through Gatekeeper™ software installed on Library staff workstation via network communication with the reader.

The administration and event software can be installed in any Library PC and can operate with a LAN or WiFi connection.

Self-tuning and Diagnostics

RFID systems are engineered and manufactured using the most advanced electronic designs.

GateKeeper™ notifies the user if the performance of the self-tuning controller has deteriorated. If required, staff would initiate the tuning sequence remotely via GateKeeper™. Tuning may be needed if the environment has changed significantly through the introduction of large metal items, or ambient electrical field changes, etc. GateKeeper™ makes it easy for libraries to maintain control of maintenance and service cost.
